

WIDOW'S HOME FIRED BY POT OF BLAZING GREASE

With Six Small Children She is Rescued from Suffocation by Timely Arrival of Help.

Lost Bulk of Her Furniture, Which Was
Not Covered by Insurance — Blaze
Started in Bakeshop — Loss on Buildings is $3,500.

Hot grease in a huge pot used for cooking doughnuts at the bakery conducted at 426 South avenue by Robert Dayton, took fire at 1:51 o'clock this morning and the flames spread rapidly to an adjoining house occupied by Mrs. Mary McBride, a poor widow, and her six small children.

Policeman John Halpin saw the flames coming through the roof, from Park avenue and he hastened to send in an alarm from box 137 at Park and South avenue. While the alarm was sounding Fred E. Boynton, assistant yard master for the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. Co., saw the fire while on his way to his home at 458 South avenue. He aroused Mrs. McBride and her children and they fled to the back of the house. The children were taken to the youngsters from the rooms which were already beginning to fill with smoke. Officers Halpin and Gerity assisted him in getting the children to the home of Officer James Halpin who lives close by. The police and firemen saved a small portion of the goods of Mrs. McBride. She was without any insurance.

The damage to the bakery building and to the house, which is owned by George B. Ward, will be about $3,500. George Rentling, a baker, was in the bake shop when the fire started. He is of the opinion that the hot grease fell into the hot grease. He tried to stop the fire with a pail of water but the flames spread with great rapidity and he was obliged to flee from the building. It was only a few minutes before both buildings were in flames.

FIRST WOOLEN MILL WAS IN HARTFORD

Washington, June 5.—Senator Warren of Wyoming has had printed for the use of the senate a pamphlet giving a history of the wool trade of the United States. It is an interesting document showing the wonderful growth of the business from nothing to its present large proportions. According to this pamphlet the first wool mill was established in Hartford in 1788 and it was started with a fund raised in the state by subscriptions. The first sale of cloth was made in 1789, and was considered very good, although the equipment and the raw material were poor. British-made goods were sold for less, however, in spite of the duty of 5 per cent. The name of the concern was the Hartford Woolen company, and it soon found its way out of business, owing to foreign competition. President Washington's inaugural suit was made at this mill. Colonel David Humphreys of Derby was the first one to import merton sheep into this country. There were one hundred of them, in charge of three Spanish shepherds. The sheep were first landed at New York in 1802. From there they were taken to Derby, where Colonel Humphreys had a fulling mill. The experiment was a success, and other flocks were later brought over. Colonel Humphreys' mill in Derby turned out to be quite a success, and the finest broadcloths in the country were produced here. It cost $450 per yard.

In 1810 the industry had grown to quite respectable proportions in the state. One of the most prominent mills was in Middletown, known as the Middletown Woolen Manufacturing company, whose chief promoter was Isaac Sanford. The mill used only the finest Spanish merino wool and produced daily from thirty to forty yards of broadcloth, which sold by the piece at from $1 to $10 a yard. This factory was the first to employ steam for its operative power, having one of Oliver Evans' horse power engines which drove all the machinery. In 1812 the product of this factory was doubled.

The pamphlet also contains numerous statements as to former tariff acts. Among them is an appeal from Connecticut to Congress, which might have been made long ago. It was made in 1842. In part it says: "The invasion of Congress on the subject of a tariff merits and receives our decided disapprobation. We did expect that an exhausted treasury, forced loans, desolated manufactories, unemployed operatives, and doubtful and gloomy prospects before us, would have furnished sufficient incentives to arouse every American citizen to speedy and effective action." This appeal was sent to Congress by the Connecticut legislature.

Joseph Dowdall Lodge Entertains Ladies

It was ladies' night at Joseph Dowdall Lodge, K. of P., last evening. The regular session of the lodge was followed by a social which was arranged by the committee, William S. Banta, George H. McKenzie, and George H. Buntz. Dinner was served by Grand Chancellor Arthur Audley. Installed William McKinnon as master at arms and Philip Schell as inside guard. A clam chowder was served.

ROACHES Running Wild

around the house are tolerated only by careless housewives. Some make a faint effort to get rid of them, but persist in using something that is not guaranteed and often useless.

Cyrus Roach Powder exterminates the roaches, is harmless, clean and not poisonous; only 35c per pound.

SOCIAL AND MUSICAL

(Special to the Farmer.)

New York, June 5.—Quite a number of Bridgeport boys, once school-fellows, members of polo teams, base ball clubs, wheel clubs, &c., &c. and chums altogether, in their happy boyhood days are now prosperous citizens of the great metropolis. Last evening Julian Sterling entertained some of the number at his residence on 94th street, Central Park West, N. Y. City. Mrs. Sterling received their guests under a large floral design in which the June roses were clustered to form the words "Welcome to boys from home," and under were arranged lilies of the valley to read "Made in Bridgeport." It was the first reunion since the leaving of dear old Bridgeport some years since and it proved to be a happy event, as Teddy would say "chuck full of spirit and 'bully.'" All those present have prospered, are men of means, with wives and children and met last night to "reminisce" over school days and "loqu岸" up to the times of their youth. The evening with music, then "Bridge" in memory of Bridgeport and ended in a supper prepared by the son of Mose Hayes once a minor New York millionaire. A veritable replica of one of Minor's famous shore dinners. Many a one of which all those present had stood on the borders of the Housatonic river. With crabs, split eels, lobsters, steamed clams and various other delicacies prepared after Minor's best menu, the feast progressed to the delight of the boys from home although the surroundings and table furniture from the style of the table furniture always in evidence at the resort on the banks of the Housatonic.

Those present were Robert French, traveling representative for Marks and company; Luther Allen, general manager for Ronalds and Johnson, Brooklyn; Charles Allen, New York manager for Thomas P. Taylor; Dr. Harry Beers, (son of Judge A. B. Beers), specialist of ear and throat and fast approach a leading place in the profession as he has been very successful; L. C. Parker, N. Y. manager of "The Charles Parker Company;" H. E. Rogers, traveling representative of The Charles Parker Company; Fred W. Tolley, vice president and general manager of The Sterling Bronze Company; Preston H. Aspell, manager of Putnam Co., 3rd St. N. Y.; William Dench, manager of The Elliott Fisher Co., 329 Broadway; Sterling H. Russell, with the James Kelly Auto Supply and Repair Co., 80 West St.; Perry MacNellie, consulting engineer of Maine & MacNellie; Walter MacNellie, auditor for Interstate Railroad commission; Robert MacNellie, consulting auditor of International Paper Co.; Theodore I. Coe, with Nowells and Stokes, Architects; Paul Sterling, Division engineer, New York and Boston Railway Company; Maxwell Sterling, civil engineer, New York and Stamford Electrical Division, dated E. R. and John W. Howes of Wheeler and Howes, Bridgeport, a colleague of the host in years past, when Mr. Sterling was associated with Wheeler and Howes of Bridgeport.

Frederic Tolley was invited by the host to preside as toastmaster upon this occasion, mentioning the fact that Mr. Tolley represented the Sterling Bronze Company in which commodity there was a large percentage of brass, which sentiment was so tactfully chosen that it appeared to the waiters as if that alloy was nearly evenly distributed. However, Mr. Tolley modestly accepted, and in silvery tones touched up his audience as one by one they were called upon to sing a song or speak.

Mr. Tolley's reminiscences of the "Old Derby" business in the old depot where now is elevated that classic runway of Bridgeport's pride The Cole's Express passenger station, was an elaborate eulogy of Henry Sanford, Prof. Samuel S. Sanford, Victory Curtis and David Foote. Between steamed clams, bluefish and oysters, Mr. Tolley related the story as an absent member of the story was retold of how he draped Minerva in the High School buildings when Prof. Bartley was Principal. Then a solemn murmur went up when it was recalled how the now Rev. Charles Smith, (then Charlie Smith) let snakes loose under the female teachers' desks. Also frogs that he had captured in Moody's pond to see if they would follow the snakes. Then came the story of the snakes captured at Samp Morgan or the snakes would swallow the frogs. And then all the ladies blushed when they recalled how that teacher jumped upon her desk and her skirts and skirted a resume was gone over of swimming at Seaside Park and the chasing cops, the old wheel club and the old polo team. Mr. Tolley was a delegate to the old Harry Seelye, Fred Halligan, Ed Hutchinson and Edward Bradley were members. Then came the story of told of Al Fones' 4th of July celebrations and how the State street "gang" were better sports then than any on the street. Then came the story of John W. Wheeler spoke with feeling of the old baseball teams, "The Stars" and "The Crescents." He was pitcher of the athletic club and he believes baseball is deteriorating. Quiries were made as to the old friends such as Frank Hastings, Tom T. Prescott, E. B. Brown, Anderson Brothers, the Wren boys, Henry Curtis, Rob Johnson, Syd Wood, Ferris Bishop and scores of others. Before the dinner the dining room silent, standing in memory of Sheltor Stevenson, "Fen" Spencer and Elmer Wright, in the old days playmates and companions of those present. There were songs as well as speeches and the evening closed with "Auld Lang Syne."

Invitations will shortly be issued by the Bridgeport hospital for commencement exercises of the Bridgeport Hospital Training School for Nurses, which this year will be held in the Park Street Congregational church, June 14. The address will be delivered by John S. Fullerton of this city, and diplomas will be awarded by Horace H. Jackson. The music will be furnished by Prof. Harry H. Whitaker, organist of the Park Street church, and Miss Anna M. Tuck, the popular soprano. The public as usual is cordially invited to these exercises, which will be particularly interesting as the class number more Bridgeport young women than ever heretofore graduated in a class from the hospital.

Friends of Rev. M. A. Lavey will be pleased to hear that he has been appointed to St. Lawrence's Episcopal church at Mount Laurel, N. J., and will begin his duties at once.

Attorney C. S. Canfield, accompanied by Mrs. Canfield, will sail on the Lancia, June 12th, for Europe. They will take their auto with them, and join the thousands of American tourists who are leisurely motoring through foreign countries taking this delightful method of enjoying a pleasant vacation trip. Mr. and Mrs. Canfield plan to be absent two months at least, and before their return may be joined by Mrs. Canfield's brother, Mr. Edward Doyle, and her sister, Mrs. Mack Hyde, who are also contemplating the trip.

Beardsley park will be the scene of many merry-making occasions, permitting, as several of the schools have planned for happy reunions there.

Mrs. F. M. Wilson, who has recently returned from Japan where she visited with her husband, gave a Japanese tea, Thursday. She was assisted by Miss Helen Lewis. The house was decorated in a typically Japanese style. Mrs. Wilson wore a kimono of blue silk over a green silk skirt. The ladies also wore the Japanese sandals. A Japanese menu was served. Mrs. Wilson treated her guests to a view of some very artistic paintings on uncut velvet, souvenirs of her journey.

Miss Ethel Grippen's luncheon given recently to Miss Emma Nothergale who is to be married June 10 to Leonard Crabtree, was a most enjoyable function.

A most successful supper and sale was given by the ladies of the People's Presbyterian church, Lincoln hall, last night. The waitresses were a group of young women of the church, who were Miss Mary Jones, Miss Davenport, Miss Elsie Tuttle, Miss Alice Keough, Miss Minnie Ritchie, Miss Edna Wynkoop, Miss Lella Phillips, Miss Frances Blush, Mrs. Elias Davis, Miss Fanny Sherwood, Miss Ruth MacBride, Miss Beattie Monroe, Miss Charlotte Bishop, Miss Lizzie Mackney, Miss Ivy Jones, Miss Ruth Watts, Miss Iva Rubey, Miss Mildred Ensign.

The general committee was: Mrs. Leroy E. Plumer, Mrs. J. E. Jones, Mrs. Bullard, Sr., Mrs. Rubey, Mrs. Bouton, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Keit, Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Mallette, Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Williams. Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Keit took the tickets, and Mrs. Wynkoop was in charge of the waitresses. Mrs. Rubey, Mrs. Carsten and Mrs. McFarquhar baked the short cakes, which were served hot. Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. MacLean, Miss Van Ramp and Mrs. Tede were in charge of the short cake and cream, while the ice cream was sold by Mrs. Wetherell. Home-made cake was sold by Mrs. Hayes; lemonade by Mrs. Young; sandwiches by Mrs. Jones; candy by Mrs. Solomon; coffee by Mrs. Fordham, and Mrs. Bullard was in charge of the culinary department.

Dr. W. W. Duncan of New Rochelle will be the speaker of the evening at the rally which Bridgeport Group of the Epworth League will hold in Newfield M. E. church, Friday evening, June 18.

Those who heard the lecture by Edward Avis in the assembly hall of the High School last night have a clearer idea of the looks of New England song birds, and of their songs, than they had deemed possible. Mr. Avis, using a violin to give him the key, imitated the notes of many of the birds. Stereoscopic views from photographs of the birds were also shown. Naturally the views of vividly colored species, as the Red-wings, Robins, and the most attracted. The lecture was arranged by the Bird club, an organization of teachers in the public schools.

Under the direction of Mrs. E. Swan and Mrs. J. J. Sheehan, the first of the series of plays which was given in St. Charles' hall, Thursday afternoon. The winners were: Mrs. Fagan, Mrs. P. W. Pulver, Mrs. J. E. Kelly, Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. J. H. Fryer, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Dixon, Mrs. Killeen, Mrs. Barnard, Mrs. Whitcomb, Mrs. Lang, Mrs. Holtz, Mrs. Seltenrich, Mrs. Lush, Mrs. Burns.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Thompson celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary at their home, 41 Gregory street, yesterday. A delegation of friends, including the Outing club, of which Mr. Thompson has been steward since 1886, presented him with a gold watch. The delegation comprised President Jacob Kline, Vice President Fred Atwater, Secretary George Had-tard and Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson. The guests were in number. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were married in St. John's church, they have one surviving child, a son, and two grandchildren. The gifts sent by friends were many.

There will be a really large time at the Epworth League Tuesday evening when Co. J, Second Connecticut Regiment, United Boys' Brigade of America, will be organized with Fred S. Trever as captain. E. E. Bonnell, Waterbury, who is major general for Connecticut, will be a visitor and will be accompanied by some 15 members of the Waterbury company. The organization now has membership of 300,000 in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ginnard received their friends Wednesday at their home in Beardsley street. A most enjoyable evening followed.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Minor surprised them at their home in Clinton avenue, recently. A dance followed and a collation was served. Those present were: Slatie Conney, May Dyer, Nellie Fitzsimmons, May Lyman, Mammie Grace, George Gritman, Frank Wannah, Daisy Palmer, Della McGuire, Emily McGuire, Lizzie McGuire, Mollie Heffernan, Catherine Heffernan, Sarah Elsmere, Sarah Elmer, Hazel Howland, Mary Deitz, William Angie, Harry Kennedy, Jack McCarthy, Paul Maloney, Teddie Thornton, Mark McCarthy, Frank McGuire, Peter Fryer, Everett Brown, Joseph Connett, Steve Kelly, Robert Eck, Elly Ryan, Mr. Minor.

The marriage of Miss Vera Shepherd, daughter of the late W. A. and Mrs. J. B. Shepherd, to Mr. W. F. Watson of Main street, and is deservedly called Wednesday, June 9. Owing to recent bereavement in the family, the wedding will be a home affair and invitations strictly limited to the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. Miss Shepherd has for several years been the cashier with Foster & Besse, in Main street, and is deservedly called with a legion of friends. Mr. Watson is a prosperous dairyman of New Preston, having a fine and well stock farm in that section where they will reside after a trip embracing Southern points.

THE THEATRES

SMITH'S

Only one more chance remains to witness the splendid bill of high class vaudeville for the current week, and the theatre should be filled to the doors this evening. This is one of the biggest offerings ever presented in this city for the little money charged, and the people of Bridgeport ought to support it with the utmost liberality. The current program is a first one, and everyone who has seen it has been delighted with the many good things which are offered. Many say, "How can you do it?" Be that as it may, the offering is there for all to enjoy it, and those who fail to improve the opportunity are certainly missing a good thing in the line of low priced amusement.

For next week, an equally good program has been arranged, and no doubt it will find the same home of admirers who have given the previous offerings their approval. One of the most important features of next week's bill, is the local vaudeville troupe, who have not before appeared here in a professional way. They are Lane and O'Donnell, a comedy acrobatic duo who have been playing all the past season in the biggest vaudeville houses in the country. Much of their time during the past season has been in the Kenilworth, where they have been receiving big money. Their act is a scream, and their many friends in this city will no doubt rally to give them a heart welcome without saying.

Little "Major" James D. Doyle, who will be best remembered as the star of the Lilliputians, will also be a feature of the local vaudeville bill. He is one of the greatest little men on the stage and the only Lilliputian Irish comedian and monologist. That he will be royally received goes without saying.

Others on the bill will be Grace Lavelle, a prima donna soprano who is said to possess the highest and purest voice on the vaudeville stage. Her range is from low G to high G alt., and she renders operatic selections in both French and English. Stevens, a Beverly, in songs and dances, and Mary S. Cane & Co., who will present a comedy sketch which is said to be irresistibly funny. Besides these, there will be new pictures, which will change Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and which will be of the finest quality, and presented as they can only be shown at this house.

The daily matinees, at 2:15, to which the children will be admitted at half price, and the continuous evening performances, starting at 7:15, will remain as usual, and the week is sure to be full of pleasure for everyone.

MINDLESS MAN RECALLS
INCIDENTS WHEN HYPNOTIZED
New Haven, June 5.—Charles Von Osten, the mindless man at Grace Hospital, was put into a hypnotic condition yesterday afternoon by Prof. A. R. Dieffendorf, the Yale scientist, to find out if he could recall any of the incidents in the latest story relative to his identification.

This story has it that Von Osten in 1902 lived with his wife and three children at 24 and 114 Washington street, Hoboken, and a photograph of him has been identified by August Markel and August Dostert, who at that time were connected with a newspaper store at 129 Grand street, New York.

Von Osten recalled these places while under the hypnotic influence. He also described Washington street but could not remember any numbers therein or the names of the people who lived at that street. He remembered the name Dostert and during the sleep spelled it out for the physician. He recalled the other names mentioned but failed to remember that he had ever worked with Markel and Dostert and his mind was absolutely blank as to whether he had ever had a wife or children except to say that he had two children, one of whom was dead.

When Von Osten was in his normal state he expressed a willingness to go to New York and Hoboken to meet the two men who claimed to know him and also wanted to visit Washington street.

Prof. Dieffendorf and Dr. William P. Baldwin, one of the hospital directors, say that they will take Von Osten to Hoboken in a day or two.
